Dead line: 10thMarch 2017

This is a two-and-a-half day workshop intended for a serious audience, including faculty and students who are interested in pursuing research and making meaningful publications. IIT Gandhinagar and Ahmedabad University jointly takes into account the necessity of inculcating a knowledge pedagogy that is deep into research and has the pleasure to collaborate with a leading international academic publishing house, Springer.

In this workshop, the participants shall be exposed to the ethos of academic writing in good international journals. Among the participants, only a selected few shall be chosen for an advanced phase where they will be offered insights into the nuances of book writing. Thus the workshop shall operate in two levels - one for the researchers who would be taking their first steps to make journal publications, and second, few among the participants who have had experiences in successfully publishing academic papers, and are now ready to pen down a book. Writing for a journal and getting a book published require different strategies. Thus, there will be two parallel tracks running; one with a focus on journal publications the other with an advanced scope for the potential authors.

This workshop will open with the subtleties of making good research publications in reputed journals. In the process, the workshop shall also indulge in streamlining a chosen few to initiate and extend their academic interests for the creation of a book.
