Ahmedabad: The alumni of the Indian Institute of Technology Gandhinagar (IITGn), have started contributing to its Alma mater. To support their juniors, graduates of 2016 batch, have set up an endowment fund to create 'Class-of-2016 Scholarship', an award for meritorious students of the institute. Out of 115 students, 30 students are actively donating to the endowment fund every month.

Interestingly, out of the 30 students who are donating for the cause, one student hailing from a remote village in India, got various opportunities in IITGn, including personality development workshops and international exposure. The student has got a good job placement and is contributing a part of his monthly income to raise the fund as a token of gratitude.

Another student, who needed an urgent financial help during his stay on campus got financial aid from the institute. And now, the student is helping others in need.

Yash Pratap Singh, student coordinator of the batch, said, "The BTech department has decided to keep the identity of the donors and the donated amount confidential so that those who intend to donate but haven't donated yet don't feel left out."
